

Privacy Policy

These are the terms on which Chefcentre.com Ltd ("The Agency") operates in relation to data protection ("Data Protection Act 1998") and associated records management. The agency provides staff ("The Operator") to the employer client ("The Client"). Accepting this policy constitutes agreement to and the provision of informed, freely given, specific and unambiguous consent to the activities of the agency in relation to personal data processing, data controller activities and the activities outlined within this policy. This policy was drafted in March/April 2017.

What information do we collect?

Website usage data is collected by cookies. As an operator for the client, the agency collects information for the purposes of employment processing activities, the information for which is detailed in this policy.

What are Cookies?

Cookies are text files placed on your computer to collect standard internet log information. This information is used to track visitor use of the website and to compile statistical reports on website activity. For further information visit; www.aboutcookies.org or www.allaboutcookies.org. You can set your browser not to accept cookies and the above websites tell you how to remove cookies from your browser, however in a few cases, web pages on this site may not operate as a result.

What are third party cookies?

In addition to our session cookie, we utilise Google Analytics and this adds cookies to your computer or device to help us with our site monitoring. You can find out more information about these cookies on Google Analytics information page. You can choose to stop receiving Google analytics by opting out, through our Contact Us form.

How is my information used?

We do not disclose information to third parties and will always discuss with you before providing you information for consideration either as an operator or a client. Information disclosed to the agency is considered confidential and will not be disclosed to third parties except in provisions required under law.

Consent

This policy constitutes the informed element of consent to provision of personal information. ChefCentre has been operating since 1969 and prides itself on confidentiality and data protection for operators and clients alike. Any issues, requests or queries about the use and retention of information should be made through the contact us page via email. It is possible to obtain a subject access request for the information we hold about you on file, this should be made via the contact us form.

Disclaimer

All of the information on this website is published in good faith and for information purposes; job specifications, locations, salaries and other information is liable to change, please contact the agency to confirm exact details about a vacancy. We do not make any warranties about the completeness, reliability or accuracy of the information. Whilst we strive to provide links that are active, useful and ethical, we have no control over the content and nature of these sites and the links to other websites do not imply a recommendation for all the content found on this site. Operators are under the client's direction and control whilst they are providing services. The client shall affect insurance to cover all risks to, and activities of, the operator provided by the agency as if the operator were the client's employee. In no circumstances will the agency be liable to the client for any loss, damage or delay of any kind whatsoever caused to the client or a third party by any act, default or omission of the operator (whether dishonest, negligent or otherwise) except in so far as the agency may incur a liability which by law cannot be excluded.

+44(0)20 7439 0771